The Prussian Premier.

HIS POWER—HIS SUCCESSFUL EFFORTS FOR THE UNIFICATION OF GERMANY.

[From the New York Mail.]

Since the days of Richelieu no statesman has held a great nation so firmly in his grip as Bismarck has held Prussia for the past few years. With a loyalty to his king which reminds one of the feudal ages, he has in reality become almost as much "the State" as Louis XIV. boasted that he was. His aggressive and daring plans for the development of Prussian power have been so steadily pursued and have so shaped events, that he has virtually become the will as well as the brains of the great movement in which the two most brilliant campaigns in history are but mere episodes. Back of all the battles, marches, diplomatic manœuvres, and popular movements for German unity, we can see the unrelaxing pressure and inspiration of one masterly mind and of one almost superhuman will. Nowhere in all history can we find an epoch in which the moral power and intellectual grasp of one man seemed so fully to control and shape events as in that whose bloody end seems now so near at hand.

Bismarck's career is an ugly fact in opposition to the theory that modern civilization has so equalized men's knowledge and power that individuals can no longer accomplish the great results that were obtained in more heroic times. That he has availed himself of existing tendencies is very true—great men are not impracticable fools and always work with the tools that are handiest. But he has shown that the mastery of men and events is just as possible in an era of newspapers, railroads, telegraphs and general intelligence as it was when Charlemagne conquered by simpler methods.

But Bismarck's death at this time would not materially defeat the fulfillment of the great schemes which have been so largely executed under his guidance. At an earlier period of the war his removal might have exposed the Germans to the intervention of the great Powers, for he alone has been able to hold each of them in a state of "masterly inactivity" by threats or promises whose effect depended largely on the fact that back of them was the most resourceful brain and determined will in Europe. But that time has passed. Germany can now reap the results of her heroic efforts and of the creative statesmanship of her leader in entire security; with or without the prestige of Bismarck's name or the guidance of his counsels.

Perhaps she can do no better without him, when the work of reconstruction really begins. Bismarck is no believer in free institutions. Having so long moved men as puppets in a game which he alone fully understood, he cannot brook the idea that the people of Germany should take part in shaping their own destinies. He might become the greatest of obstacles to the growth of that free and independent Germany which we hope to see springing up in the due processes of natural development from within the political machinery of the new Empire.

Advices from China.

MR. SEWARD'S PARTY AT PEKIN—FALL OF THE PRESENT CHINESE DYNASTY PREDICTED.

[Washington Telegram, Jan 28.]

A dispatch is received from Rear Admiral Rogers, commanding the Asiatic fleet, dated flag-ship Colorado, Woosung, December 12th, 1870. He reports that he returned to that place with his officers of staff and guard, in company with Mr. Seward and party, from Pekin. Admiral Rogers had several conferences with Minister Low regarding Chinese affairs, and also with regard to a proposed visit to Corea for the purpose of establishing a treaty with that country for the protection of our shipwrecked seamen; and it was arranged that in May next Mr. Low and Admiral Rogers should go to Corea and declare their desire and purpose.

During the journey to and from Pekin the party were everywhere received with courtesy. In Pekin Prince Kung and the officers of the Imperial Cabinet returned the visit which had been made them. The interview was agreeable, but their conversation was confined to general issues. Seward once or twice touched lightly on serious matters, but the discussion was avoided by them.

The Admiral writes as follows: "I cannot but see ruin to the present dynasty, and in the present condition of the country I do not conclude that it deserves from China a longer sufferance. Canals which ages ago were ways of traffic and travel are now filled with mud; temples once magnificent are in ruins; roads made at vast expense, and more perfect when new than any I have ever seen, are now impassable, having had no repairs apparently for centuries; marble bridges of fine proportions have piers swept away and arches fallen, while neglect and decay terminates every important public building or work. The people are still industrious, vigorous, and in the main well clad, and have their own ideas, and are seemingly contented."

TROCHU'S UNPOPULARITY.—The following Paris correspondence of the New York Tribune, December 30th, explains why the people began to lose faith in their chosen leader. The writer is speaking of the abandonment of the plateau of Avron, and says:

It is impossible to deny that the effect of this event on Paris, was depressing in the extreme, but it is still more so by reason of the terms in which it was announced to them officially. We are told in one sentence that the employment of the heavy siege artillery of the Prussians, must modify the system of defence. "But," it is added complacently, "all has been foreseen from the commencement of the siege." It is certainly a pity that if everything has been foreseen, General Trochu should throw away his strength in unavailing efforts, and should talk so bravely of attempts which all end in failure. There is a strong undercurrent of feeling rising against him just now, on account of his indecision and many delays. What he wants is devil. He is a very able, honest man; but Paris wants for its deliverer something more than a man—a hero; if he were Godlike, so much the better, but it would probably suffice if he were devil enough. As it is, one may now conclude that he will no more attempt to act on the offensive. From the first, indeed, his plan, of which we have heard so much, was entirely offensive. It was enough for him to render Paris impregnable, and in this he has perfectly succeeded. Paris rendered impregnable, and able to resist famine for four or five months—he would wait for the chapter of accidents. Who could tell what might not happen? What victories might not be gained by French armies in the Provinces? What relief might not come from foreign intervention? He was driven out of this temporizing policy, toward the end of October, partly by disgust, partly by the urgency of friends who wished him well. He began to prepare the means of attack, and at last, after interminable delays, he made an attack; he made two great attacks on the lines of the enemy. Both ended in failure, and I doubt if he will attack again unless he is driven to it by an overwhelming expression of public opinion. He will prefer to resist as long as he can the attacks of the enemy, and to wait for the chances of relief from Gen. Chanzy. Fabius Cunctator was a great man, and succeeded at last in saving Rome, but his policy is certainly hazardous, and it approaches to nearly that of a military Micawber to inspire much confidence, especially now when we have barely five weeks before us. Still there is no use in despairing. If Micawber policy is bad, the worst of all policies is that of despair.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO FEBRUARY 7.

News from Paris.

VERSAILLES, Feb. 5.—A special correspondent who has been inside of Paris since the investment, came out to day and returned to night. He says the commandant of Montroge has committed suicide.

The delivery of arms has commenced at Severan and is proceeding rapidly in consequence of the convention providing for the delivery of arms before the revictualling of Paris.

Parisians are under the impression that the Prussian troops will not enter Paris. They are still ignorant of the full terms of capitulation, as it is believed the guns in the forts will not be taken by the enemy.

The price of provisions had not yet been lowered. Of one hundred thousand horses originally in Paris, sixty thousand have been killed for food.

The exchange of wounded and prisoners is proceeding to-day at the gates of Versailles.

Arrangements are being made in Berlin for the Emperor's arrival. He will be in Berlin by the 8th of March at latest. He will leave Versailles on the 4th and pass through Windon and Magdenburg on his way to the Capital.

The whole army of investment will march through Ariade Triumphs, Avenue De L'Imperial, Rue Da Rivoli and Rue St. Anton, simply for the purpose of passing through Paris.

The Inspector General of the English army carrying provisions for the relief of the French entered the city yesterday.

The feeling against Gambetta is increasing in intensity.

Dispatch from Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The Prussian Cross Gazette confirms the report that all national questions before the Conference have been arranged.

The same paper denies that the Czar has written to Emperor William counselling moderation in dealing with vanquished France.

PARIS, Feb. [illegible]—Intense suffering prevails in this city, hundreds dying daily from starvation—food being wholly inadequate.

French Political Affairs.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A complete rupture has taken place between the Paris Government and Gambetta. The restoration of the Empire is most probable. It is reported that the Pope has undertaken to assist in the restoration.

Jules Favre has resigned as Minister of the Interior, but will remain Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Advices from Versailles of the 5th says that Scherr has been nominated for the Assembly by the moderate Republicans.

Advices from all parts of France indicate that the Assembly will contain a majority of Imperialists and Monarchists.

The authorities at Versailles now allow letters from Paris to be forwarded.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—On motion of Stewart the Senate took up the bill to define [illegible] the rights of miners, and encourage the development of mines, which was amended at the suggestion of Casserly, and then passed. It provides facilities for obtaining patents to [illegible] lands, and means simply to facilitate mining [illegible] gation and enable parties locating to take [illegible] certain amount of land or each [illegible] claims for lumbering, milling and other [illegible]

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—The steamer Moses Taylor arrived to day from Honolulu. She brings thirteen United States navy officers, of the wrecked U. S. steamer Saginaw, and 94 other passengers from Honolulu, Hon. J. Vogel, Post master General of New Zealand, and 33 others from Australia and New Zealand.

Four of the crew of the Saginaw died, the remainder were all rescued and arrived safe [illegible] Honolulu.

The Australian papers have discovered [illegible] man Neilson, late agent of the Pres [illegible] of San Francisco who visited [illegible] recently New Zealand in the interest [illegible] projected line of steamers, is Wm N [illegible] an Australian convict, having yet [illegible] serve. They publish a full record of [illegible] conviction for forgery, and chuckle [illegible] their New Zealand brethren being [illegible] readily by an adventurer. He [illegible] Washington to lobby for the line.

A letter from Sidney says if Webb's line is put on, San Francisco will have two lines to Australia and New Zealand, as the company owning the steamers Wanga Wanga and City of Melbourne have almost concluded arrangements for direct service from Sidney, calling off Moreton Bay for the Queensland mails, thence to Fiji, Honolulu and San Francisco.

Weather fine and warm; heavy rains during the night.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

It is a curious story that one of the first bombs thrown into Paris found its way to the tomb of Napoleon I., and shattered the grand dome which arches his last resting place in the Hotel des Invalides.

The German officers who accompanied Marshal McMahon after he was taken prisoner at Sedan, while in a wounded state, attempted to compel him to give his adhesion to the capitulation of Sedan. He refused to sign it, energetically. They then threatened to have him taken to Wesbaden between two gens d'armes, as soon as his wounds had healed. "Do your worst," he said, "but I will not sign." As far as regards the Marshal the Germans did not insist, but they attempted to compel his aid-de-camps to sign it; and when they refused, had them taken to Weisbaden on foot, between two gens d'armes.

Marshal Randon, who died a few years ago, aged 76, served in the First Napoleon's last campaigns in Russia, Saxony and France. He commanded the battalion which went from Grenoble to oppose the advance of Napoleon on his return from Elba, and answered the Emperor's memorable words: "If any of you desire to fire upon his Emperor, behold him here!" by calling upon them to fire. They, however, not only refused, but many of them presented their pieces at Randon, who turned his horse's head and effected his escape. After the revolution of 1830 he went to Africa, and served in the principal campaigns down to 1843. During the period of the Republic and Empire he was successively Governor of Algeria, Minister of War, and Senator. He also took part in the Italian campaign.

Statistics of the Income Tax.

The following is a comparative statement of the number of persons assessed for income in 1869-70 in each of the following classes:

		1869	1870
1st.	Tax $20 or less	$107,047	$112,124
2d	Tax over $20, and not over $50	69,154	60,501
3d	Tax over $50, and not over $100	41,108	40,584
4th.	Tax over $100, and not over $500	45,002	44,496
5th.	Tax over $500	9,404	6,243
	Total	$272,845	$270,248

Under the act of July 14, 1870, raising the exemption from $1,000 to $2,000, 177,181 of the persons assessed in 1869, and 180 925 of the persons assessed in 1870, would be relieved from the income tax altogether, and 95,662 persons in 1869 and 94 323 persons in 1870 would each return a tax of less than $50.

A statement giving the number assessed in each of the States and Territories in the years 1869 and 1870 shows that in the District of Columbia the number assessed for income in 1869 was 2,631, and in 1870, 2,527, a decrease of 104.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Gambetta Overruled.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—A decree signed by all the Ministers here has been promulgated annulling Gambetta's decree on electoral disabilities. It maintains the supreme authority of Paris' government and declares that elections shall be unrestricted; says that neither the government of National defense, Red Republicans nor Imperialists have any chance of carrying the elections. The public favor a moderate party. Condemn the weakness of the Government, and complain that they were not consulted on the capitulations and armistice.

From Bordeaux.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 7.—Members of the government have arrived at Paris. They telegraphed to the Prefect last night a decree annulling the Bordeaux decree of the 31st of January, relative to electoral disqualifications as incompatible with the principles of universal suffrage. The Paris decree of the 29th is maintained.

A cable special to day says advices from Paris to day, state that the Prussians are obstructing revictualling of Paris.

Nine trains were detained at Amiens, although the line is clear.

It is said the Germans are satisfied France will refuse their terms of peace, and consequently seize provisions for their own use.

BORDEAUX, Feb. 6.—The Prefect of Lyons received Lorraine's and Alsatians yesterday.

Palladines and Arrgo arrived here this forenoon.

The Prussians have occupied Louins Bours.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 7.—The Tucson, Arizona, Citizen has the following:

A terrible state of affairs exists throughout the Territory, in the face of opposite representation. The Apaches are multiplying acts of theft and murder within the past two weeks. They captured a train, killed one man and wounded several others. Another train between Phoenix and Wickenburg was attacked, a man named George Kane killed, and 18 mules driven off.

Tulby, Ochoa & Co.'s train was surprised ten miles south of Tucson, one man was killed and all the stock stolen.

The mail coach on its last downward trip was attacked near Phœnix, in the vicinity of Tubac. A man named Joe King was shot and mortally wounded, and a number of horses run off.

At Florence 33 mules and 100 head of cattle were stolen.

General demoralization exists among farmers. No one feels safe. Many are abandoning their property and fleeing from the Territory glad to escape with their lives.

Representatives from all parts of the Territory are at Tucson for the purpose of devising means of protection from the savages.

An order has been received for the transfer of six companies of cavalry from Arizona to undisturbed Washington Territory.

The recent contest before the Illinois Legislature which resulted in the election of General Logan as United States Senator, was remarkable for the powerful support rendered the successful candidate by his wife. WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 8, 1871.

Trying to Escape the Odium.

It is gratifying to observe that there lingers in the Democratic mind a feeling of shame over the conduct of their party organizing the great rebellion. This feeling is made manifest by frequent attempts on their part to explain away the odium attaching to the transactions of Buchanan's administration. It is a part of the history of the country that the organization of the rebellion was not only permitted but more or less openly connived at and assisted by that administration; that Buchanan was a weak man, and whatever his intentions might have been, was influenced and worked upon by his counselors, nearly all of whom were rampant secession Democrats, and that the Government became really and practically the agent of the conspirators who were plotting the destruction of the country. All these things are very odious now, and Democrats frequently make efforts to soften the ugly facts by excuses and explanations. They are now engaged in an attempt to deny that John B. Floyd, Buchanan's Secretary of War, robbed the arsenals of the country to arm the Southern rebels. Jeremiah S. Black, Buchanan's Attorney General, who was a traitor differing with Floyd only in degree, has written an article for an Eastern magazine, in which he declares that Floyd did not send the arms to the South with a view of arming the expected rebellion, but simply for the "convenience of storage;" and asserts besides that the arms were of no value. From Mr. Black, who was a confederate of Mr. Floyd, and who, as the law adviser of the President, submitted an opinion that it would be unconstitutional for the Government to attempt to prevent the dismemberment of the Union, the country will hardly expect a veracious and reliable account of the transactions of those times. The Oregon Herald, we observe, publishes a part of Black's article, and points to it as a triumphant refutation of the charge of treason against the patriotic Floyd. Now of course this vindication of Floyd is conclusive! It is a "loyal lie" to say that he was a man who would rob Northern arsenals to arm Southern rebels. True, he took up arms himself and became a General in the rebel army, but that is no argument whatever to the Democratic mind against his honesty and patriotism. The Herald no doubt would maintain that he was as good and true a "Union man" as ever lived.

There is abundant evidence that those arms were sent to the South to arm the people there against the Government, and that so far from being "worthless," they were as good as any in the country, and were of the greatest use to the rebels during the war. Pollard, the author of the only recognized history of the war from a Southern standpoint, bears testimony of the efficiency of the service rendered the rebellion by Floyd. In his First Year of the War, page 67, he gives the following account of the manner in which the rebels were armed for the contest:

> It had been supposed that the Southern people, [illegible] manufactures as they were, and in the [illegible] preparation for the mighty conflict that [illegible], would find themselves illy provided with arms to contend with an enemy rich in the means of munitions of war. This disadvantage had been provided against by the timely act of one man. Mr. Floyd, of Virginia, when Secretary of War under Mr. Buchanan's administration, had by a single order, effected the transfer of 115,000 improved muskets and rifles from the Springfield armory and Watervliet arsenal to the different arsenals of the South.

So we are told by the author of the Southern history that Floyd intentionally supplied the South with arms for the expected struggle. He "provided against" the "disadvantage" at which the South would otherwise have been placed, by ordering the transfer of "115,000 improved muskets and rifles to Southern arsenals." And this eminent Democrat, this [illegible] in Buchanan's administration [illegible] opportunity to provide the Southern [illegible] with means to make war on the Government [illegible] Union, while he himself was a minister of that Government under a Constitution which he had sworn to protect and defend. This party then justified his actions and still attempts to justify it. Upon it, therefore, rests a great share of the odium of the attempt to subvert the Union.

In December, 1860, after South Carolina had seceded and the rebellion was actually begun, Floyd made another attempt to send arms to the South. He issued an order for an extensive transfer of arms, and especially of heavy ordnance, from Pittsburg to Southern forts. [illegible] there was an earnest protest at Pittsburg and throughout the country against a transfer so palpably in the interest of Southern treason. A great mass meeting was held at Pittsburg, and a vigorous remonstrance was made against the execution of the order. This was on the 27th December. Two days after Floyd resigned and the order was not carried out. He intended to place those arms also in the hands of the rebels, but events hastened so rapidly that he did not succeed in his design.

The history is that the active working force of Buchanan's administration consisted of leading rebels or those who were in their service. Thus, while one member of his Cabinet (Floyd) was arming the Southern rebels—or Democrats, if the Herald likes the correspondent term better—for their assault on the Union, another member (Black) was advising the President that it would be unconstitutional to resist secession and rebellion. This was about as good a thing as the rebels (or Southern Democrats) wanted. All these facts have been recited a great many times and are quite familiar to the whole people, but it may be as well to recite them again, as often as Democrats attempt to varnish over the infamous agency of their party, as represented by Buchanan's administration, in organizing the rebellion. They would better be silent on this subject than to revive it and try to vindicate their conduct in the premises. What is written is written, and they cannot reverse facts nor remove the obloquy that rests on their party.

"Fight at Dame Europa's School."

It is natural that French writers should attempt to scare England by asserting that the next move of Germany will be a direct menace to her, and probably an invasion of English soil. But people of sober judgment do not expect anything of that kind. No one, however, can fail to see that the annihilation of French power is a blow to British influence in Europe. The result of the London Conference, at which Russia has carried all her points, tells that story. Michael Chevalier, a French writer, asks how it is that the "bright intellects that rule England do not see that her interests are bound up with those of France." An English journal says: "He will find the answer to his question in the apathy with which the country seems to view our seven vessels lying at the bottom of the Seine."

A writer in the Contemporary Review takes a very gloomy view of the prospects of England as a great power. He says:

> At this moment we are drifting to the disintegration of our Empire. Few believe it. Few have seen the great currents sweeping away off beyond the horizon, commencing their vast circuits even at the antipodes, but ere long the cyclone will burst upon us, and every one, especially the chief officers, will acknowledge a divine wind, and calmly resign themselves to see the vessel rocked and blown to pieces, saving themselves, no doubt, "some on boards, and some on broken pieces of the ship."

This view is perhaps better illustrated by a sixpenny pamphlet recently issued at London, which is having a great run. It is entitled, "The Fight at Dame Europa's School. Showing How the German Boy Thrashed the French Boy, and How the English Boy Looked On." A correspondent says the whole case is very cleverly argued out in this pamphlet, and the result arrived at is that the "English Boy's" standing in "Dame Europa's School" is not what it was a little while ago, and when he had the "French Boy" to take his part.

The New Apportionment.

A bill has been reported in Congress from the House Committee on Judiciary, reapportioning the representatives to Congress according to the recent census, and increasing the number from 243 to 280. This is a smaller increase than was originally talked of, but it is understood to meet the views of the various interests and parties. This bill leaves out of consideration, so far as can be seen, any ratio of representation, and directly states the number of representatives each State shall be entitled to. The list, giving ranks of States, population, and number of members each State shall be entitled to, is as follows:

Senator Conkling on Sumner and San Domingo.

In the debate in the Senate on the resolution to send the Commission to San Domingo, Senator Conkling made a speech of singular vigor and power. The speech was a reply to Sumner, and though strictly parliamentary, it was remarkably keen and incisive. In a single effort Conkling answered Sumner and the Democratic Senators together, and closed with the following vigorous utterance:

> If political effect is to be given in consequence of the essay of the Senator from Massachusetts, or of the speeches upon the other side of this Chamber in denunciation of the supposition that a Republican administration is looking for territory in the Gulf of Mexico, so be it. We will argue that question in the appropriate forum with our opponents and their allies who have recently joined them; and when we do we will go back in history; we will go back to the time when James Buchanan, John Y. Mason, August Belmont and Pierre Soulé, assembled at the tomb of Charlemagne and proclaimed the Ostend manifesto. We will go back to the time when it was Democratic doctrine, not only that we needed empire in the tropics, not only that we longed for the West India Islands, but that the Queen of the Antilles was so essential to us, that falling back on the elementary doctrine of self-preservation, we would assert Rob Roy's right, assert the dogma that might makes right, and, in the language of Mr. Soule, responding to a serenade in the city of New York, "tear it by force from the old Spanish wolf." That was commendable Democratic doctrine in those days, yet Democrats are against honest purchase now. We will argue before that great jury, too numerous to be packed and too virtuous to be bribed, the question whether in this day it is safe honestly, economically, cheaply to oppose free labor in San Domingo to the slave labor of the cane-fields of Cuba, and whether in truth, if this island proves of the value and abounding in the promises ascribed to it, it is wise or otherwise that we acquire it.

Partisan Swindling.

In California a Democratic Legislature tried to enact laws which would procure a support for starveling and worthless Democratic papers, which could not exist on their own merits as news journals. In some particulars the Oregon Legislature initiated their acts. How it works in California is thus told by the Alpine Chronicle:

> The State Paper Act, passed by a Democratic Legislature, provides that all summons against non-residents shall be published in the State paper, and also in the litigant paper of the county wherein the suit is commenced. Had it not contained this provision the Democratic county press would have defeated it; but, after its passage, the State paper folks pushed through an amendment to the Practice Act, providing that where a summons is published in the State paper, it need not be inserted in the county paper. These acts were approved on the same day, consequently the one cannot take precedence of the other, and eminent lawyers in the State have decided that such advertisements must be published in both State and county litigant papers, to insure against further litigation. Judge Goff, of this county, looks upon this matter in the same light, and all summons against non-residents, in which he may be interested, will be published in both papers, for the protection of his clients and himself. This is an onerous tax to be imposed upon the people by a Democratic Legislature, to bolster up a partisan paper. It is a heavier tax than any imposed on the people by the Federal Government, against which the State paper contains its daily diatribe.

Recently a paper published in one of the towns up the valley complained that the cost of transporting our staple products to San Francisco is excessive. This matter should not be misrepresented. It does Oregon no good but much harm. The truth is, the freight on wheat and flour from here to San Francisco is as low as any person could reasonably expect or desire it. It is only half as much as the freight on wheat and flour from Chicago to New York, and the distance is almost as great. It would be better for our State if its journals would give facts regarding its situation and advantages, rather than misrepresent them out of spite towards somebody or other. It is not good sense to represent that the charges for shipping our grain to a market are extortionate, when they are not, and thus deter people from coming here, merely to gratify spleen, or manifest resentment, against Ben Holladay.

POLITICAL NOTES

Says the New York Herald: The Democrats still scout manifest destiny. They persist in decrying such a fine old Democratic measure as the annexation of San Domingo. Their own manifest destiny is defeat if they do not change their ways.

The New Haven Lever, a Democratic paper, thinks Governor Hoffman is too mild in his opposition to "Federal interference" in Congressional elections, as he only protests after the commission of the offense, instead of resisting at the time. It says: "This has got to be the fashion in these cowardly times. It is rather cheap rations upon which to feed and nourish good soldiers of liberty. It is worse than water-gruel for giants."

Mr. James Ponder, the newly elected Governor of Delaware, in his inaugural address, expresses his gratification that he owes his election exclusively to the votes of white citizens. He also ventures the opinion that the extension of the elective franchise to citizens of African descent was unwise in policy, unsound in principle, and will be found detrimental to the public interests. But the Governor is kind enough to intimate that he will respect the Constitution of the United States until such time as that instrument shall be declared, by competent authority, to be unconstitutional.

The Chicago Republican says the chagrin of the St. Louis Democrat over the election of Frank Blair to the Senate—an event which is but the natural result of its own political engineering—is strongly suggestive of a little story which Mr. Lincoln used to tell when he wanted to illustrate a marked case of parental repudiation. "It was that of Bill Reynold's mare. This animal had just passed through the pains and perils of maternity, and was about to indulge its joys and its hopes when, looking round, she beheld in her off spring the unsightly form of a mule colt. She pricked up her ears, ran off, and was never afterward seen or heard of, but her owner was heard to remark that she alone was to blame for it. We leave the Democrat to make the application."

Much amusement was occasioned in the House on the 20th ult. in the debate on the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill, by an incident in which certain Democratic leaders were literally "hoist by their own petard." Messrs. Wood and Eldridge were engaged in a bitter attack upon the President, and his expenditure of the secret service fund, arguing that this fund ought to be abolished; that it was contrary to the genius of our institutions to permit such a peculiar element of power to remain in the hands of a President, with so many chances of its being corruptly used, when Mr. Kelsey, of New York, who had charge of the bill, quietly sent for the Globe, and at the conclusion of the gentleman's remarks, he sent some of their old speeches up to the Clerk's desk to be read. These speeches were made in 1866, when they as stoutly defended the fund and the use of it made by President Johnson against the criticisms of Republicans at that time. There was a burst of laughter, and Eldridge wiggled out of it by saying he had no doubt he was wrong then, but it ended the debate.

The Two Routes.—The New York Shipping List has this item:

> The direct importation of Tea via Suez Canal cannot so far be regarded as a success, so far as time is concerned. The British steamer Riga, which arrived here on the 15th inst. by that route, from Shanghae, was one hundred and twenty-seven days on the passage. This is nearly double the time that was expected to be required for the transit of goods by [illegible] coming through the Suez Canal. The [illegible] which preceded her made the passage in about ninety-six days. Tea is arriving via San Francisco and the Pacific Railroad in a little over a month from Japan and China.

The Boston Advertiser regrets that the "sound common sense of Mr. Williams of Oregon is to be lost to the Senate and the country." It is the more to be regretted from the fact that the Democrats in choosing his successor have not selected a representative of the ability of their party in the State.

Langley's Directory says that in the Pacific States and Territories there are 674 quartz mills, with 7,788 stamps. California has more than half of them. There are, it is said, 15 quartz mills in Oregon.

The Prince of Wales has been chosen President of the Royal Agricultural Society of Ireland. It is expected that he will write on "what he knows about farming."

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 8, 1871

CITY.

The Lecture.—Mr George P. Riley, the colored lecturer at Philharmonic Hall, had a full house to hear him last evening. As a lecturer, we must say that he is quite equal to the average of our Caucasian lecturers. He talks right along, uses remarkably good diction, rarely hesitates, and commits no blunders in choice of words. He makes no efforts at display beyond correctness of style and enunciation, and seems to avoid mostly the extravagant figures for which his race is somewhat distinguished. He set out in the treatment of his subject by saying that Toussaint L'Ouverture was one of the most remarkable men of his generation, if we judge him by the three highest tests of true manhood—courage, spirit of liberty and persistence. These qualities have placed the Anglo-Saxons at the head of the human race, and he claimed that in judging African character we should apply the same tests. Thus opening his subject, he gave a succinct history of San Domingo, its settlement, government and people, up to the time when Toussaint rose into view, and then went on to detail the scenes of the bloody war of races among the French, English, Spanish and Africans, during which Toussaint grew into a distinguished soldier leader and deliverer. He was fifty years old when he entered the military service, and in seven years had raised from his people an accomplished and victorious army, had beaten and driven the Spaniards in all parts of the Island, and saved it to the French crown. In passing this branch of his subject he drew a comparison between Toussaint and Bonaparte and Cromwell. Bonaparte at the age of twenty seven had at his command the finest army of the world. Cromwell at forty years had the whole English common people, opposed only by the aristocracy. Toussaint at fifty years, for the first time took up the trade of arms, and had only a few thousand people lately disenthralled from slavery out of which to organize his army of delivery. Cromwell was a soldier only and not a statesman, and his government fell with him. Toussaint was not only a soldier but a statesman, and after war he ruled most wisely in peace, giving lessons in commerce, and noble ones in religious tolerance to surrounding nations. Negro as he was, he was entitled to a place beside the first men of the beginning of the 19th century. In 1801, the island was at peace and enjoying prosperity under most benignant control. The speaker went on from an account of the condition of San Domingo at this period, to speak of the military expedition sent out to the island by Napoleon, and this suggested several amusing comparisons between the characters of Napoleon and Toussaint; peculiarities in which they were alike, personal anecdote (very well told) of the two men. The story of the struggle which followed, the desolation visited upon the island, the heroic sacrifices of the [illegible] for liberty, the barbarities of the [illegible] soldiery, the conclusion of the [illegible] of the French commandant, the betrayal of Toussaint, and transportation to France as a prisoner, his confinement and death in a dungeon, starved by Napoleon, were the subjects of the [illegible] lecture. He concluded by saying [illegible] from now, when the prejudices [illegible] have been overcome, and the [illegible] shall be seen only [illegible] of history, the name of Toussaint [illegible] will appear as one of the [illegible]. Throughout the speaker was listened to with close and most respectful attention [illegible] frequently applauded. The [illegible] made no mistake when they invited [illegible] before them.

An Unfortunate Domestic Case.—A case [illegible] of the old adage that [illegible] singly," and which [illegible] came up for hearing in [illegible] yesterday morning. C. A. Westfall, Treasurer of Washington county, was [illegible] for embezzlement [illegible] claim that he is guiltless of [illegible] the deficit in his [illegible] a careless, loose way [illegible] his arrest his wife [illegible] the time, residing [illegible] before yesterday, Mr W. came [illegible] found that his wife had left the [illegible] provided for her by her husband, [illegible] Mrs Lowe. Mr. Westfall [illegible] the person last named, who, to some cause unexplained, as soon as she ascertained Westfall was there sent for an officer to [illegible]. He was then taken into custody [illegible] and immediately thereafter Mrs Lowe and Mrs Westfall appeared and [illegible] two complaints against him [illegible] by Mrs Lowe charging Westfall [illegible] conduct, and the other sworn to by his wife charging him with having made threats against her person and property. Westfall immediately gave bail for his appearance yesterday morning. Upon investigation of the charges in the court yesterday it seems that Westfall had called upon his wife and entreated her [illegible] with him, which she refused to do. Whereupon Mrs [illegible] interfered and ordered him from the house. In rendering a decision in the first case Judge Lewis remarked in substance that there seemed to be more of a determination on the part of the witnesses for the prosecution to oppose an unfortunate man than to obtain justice. He would, therefore, discharge the defendant. Whereupon the charge upon the part of the State, was also abandoned and the defendant discharged. During the trial, the defendant was attended by many of his friends, and the sympathy of the spectators was manifested for the unfortunate man, while the decision of the court was highly approbated.

C. A. Dolph appeared for the city; C. B. Upton for the State, and Caples & Moreland for the defendant.

Sunday at Kalama.—A Kalama correspondent writes Feb. 7th as follows: Last Sunday was a quiet day in this new town, notwithstanding the pressure of work and business to be seen at [illegible] week days. Work was generally [illegible] and all operations immediately [illegible] the proprietors of the town, were stopped. [illegible] was no drunkenness, as no selling of liquor [illegible] upon the ground. The whole aspect of the place was at more orderly, [illegible] than is commonly seen in new railroad towns. The stand taken by the Company in reference to the selling of intoxicating liquors, and their liberality in giving building lots for churches and schools, is worthy of all praise, and assures us that this grand enterprise is in the hands of enlightened men. Bishop Morris held the first Lord's day service that has as yet been heard on this new ground, Mr DeVore, of the Methodist church, having anticipated him in a week night service a few days before. The Bishop preached morning and evening in Capt. Reed's restaurant to large congregations, who participated heartily in the services and paid marked and respectful attention to the sermons. An Episcopal church will be immediately erected and services regularly kept up by the Bishop and the several clergy who are within easy reach of this town, now so rapidly growing into importance.

Up River Items.—A friend just returned from a trip up the valley contributes the following news items:

The Calliope has left the trade on the Yambill river and returned to Corvallis. The time for which the Company put her on that trade, two months, having expired. The owners did not receive sufficient business inducements to continue the experiment longer at present.

The late sown wheat begins to green the surface of the fields, while the early sown is doing well in Yamhill, and farmers predict an ample yield.

About Butteville the fields promise unusually well at this season.

The P. T. Co.'s boats have a fine stage of water even to Eugene, and there is still a large amount of grain to bring down from the upper river.

Farmers are busy seeding for a large crop, with better hopes of good prices than usual at seeding time.

During the last year Amity has advanced in the matter of church building and dwellings and good schools.

The last case of small pox has completely recovered at Dayton, and business moves on as usual.

Annual Ball.—The second Annual Ball of the Congregation Ahabie Shalome, will take place at Philharmonic Hall on the evening of March 8th. The ball is given by the young men for the benefit of the German and Hebrew school of that Congregation. The committees announced are as follows: Arrangements—R. Prag, J Davis and P. Levin. Reception—A. Hyman, J Kohn, and J Davis. Floor Managers—U. Jones, S Harris and C. Goldstein.

What's in the Wind?—The Vieuxtemps Bros. and the Salem Statesman are in a row. The Statesman calls them by a new pet name and relates that they have threatened to cowhide the editor; the editor ad interim proposes to turn the sanctum into a meat shop, whenever the Brothers shall call on that errand, and much more in the same vein. There has evidently been an "unpleasantness" between these parties.

An Important Dental Invention.—We saw, yesterday, an invention in dentistry which is certainly a very neat, ingenious and, as it strikes us, a very important improvement upon the old methods of filling or building up decayed or worn teeth. It was invented by Dr. C. H. Mack of this city, and he calls it the "Improved method of securing dental fillings." The tools as well as the method, are of his invention, and a patent for the whole has been applied for. The tools consist of very delicate drills, combined socket and screwdriver, etc., but a description of them is not essential to this notice of the invention. We saw a job of work lately completed by Dr. Mack—the building up to their original height of several front and side teeth which had been worn down nearly to the nerve. This work sufficiently attests the value of the invention. Under the old method, if there were no cavity to form the anchorage of the filling, it was either difficult or impossible to make it stay. By this method, there is no difficulty at all. Filling can be put right on top or on the outside of a tooth just as well as if there were a cavity to anchor it. The Doctor uses a delicate drill with which he bores a hole into the bone of the tooth. He then takes the combined socket and screw-driver and inserts in it a little gold nib, on which screw-threads are cut, like a screw-tap, which he screws firmly into the drilled hole in the tooth, leaving the end projecting. This is then just like a screw pin driven half its length into the tooth. We tried to pull one out of a tooth and found it too much for us. As many of these pins may be put in as are necessary to form the anchorage—one or two, three or even four, as the case may be. They are put in at variant angles with each other, and the gold filling is then placed about them till, as dentists know, the filling and the pin become welded together. The filling is, of course, thus anchored with metal prongs firmly set (in different directions) in the bone of the tooth. In cases of cavities from decay by this method the old way of scraping and digging the cavity deeper and of form so as to make an anchorage—an excessively disagreeable process to the patient—is avoided. Beside this, the work can be fastened firmly where there is no cavity, as where a corner has been broken off; and as the amount of fitting required is thus less, operations can be done at less cost. The method, it strikes us will be very generally and at once adopted by the profession.

How They Do It at the East.—"Neck-Tie Parties" are becoming quite the rage in the Eastern States, and we have heard of one in this city, within the last few days. As they are to be the fashion, it may be worth while to know how they do it at the East. An Ohio paper does them up as follows: "The Congregational Church of Columbus, Ohio, have reduced the thing to a science, and it will be provocative of a good deal of fun, especially if, by the merest chance in the world, you know three or four ladies should happen to wear dresses made of the same material and color. Here's the way they do it there: Every lady attending the party will be expected to prepare a gentleman's neck-tie of the same material of the dress she wears for the evening, and hand it to the doorkeeper, who will give her a number. Every gentleman will receive at the door an envelope containing a neck-tie and number corresponding to the number in the bands of the lady furnishing the neck-tie. He will immediately go to the dressing room, put on the neck-tie and commence search for the lady donor, whom he is to find by matching his tie with the dress. When he decides that he has found the giver, he is expected to entertain her at the table where oysters, icecream and coffee will be served at the usual prices. When this is done, the lady will present her number, and if the gentleman can match it with the number he finds in his envelope, his obligation is cancelled. If he makes a wrong selection he must try again. The ties will be of such value that they will amply repay several mistakes."

Information Wanted.—Henrietta Conklin, of Cheyenne, writes under date of February 25th, asking information of her brother Eli H. Mather, a young man of 19 years, who left Cheyenne June 26, 1870, in company with William Jamison to go to Portland, Oregon. The two arrived in this city some time in July. Mather got employment in the New York hotel, but afterward got sick and left there. The last his mother and sister heard of him he had recovered from his sickness and was looking for work, but was unable to find any. Money was sent him through postoffice orders, but it was never heard whether he got it. His mother's name is Mary Ann Jones. Any one knowing of young Mather, will please communicate with the inquirer as above.

Henry C. Whitney, No 25 Lawrence street, Boston, wants information regarding the whereabouts of his father, William Whitney, who was supposed to be in this city two years ago. Any one who knows whether the said William Whitney is living or dead, will confer a great favor on Henry C. Whitney, by informing him as above.

Opposition Drawn Off.—The steamer Calliope which has been running an opposition tilt against the P. T. Co.'s steamer Dayton on the Yamhill river for some time past, has been drawn off. The people of Yamhill county failed to see the advantage of dividing the freight when there is barely enough to pay one steamer to run the river the year round. It is due, too, that the P. T. Co. deserve well of the people and merit their support.

The Railroad Subscription.—Yesterday the railroad committee were hard at work, and met with good success. The amount to be raised is now reduced to $8,500. It is the intention to close up the subscription to-day. This is the last day of grace, and as citizens of Portland all know and agree that the money must be pledged, they should be ready to-day to respond and close it up.

Railroad Meeting—Errors.—Our figures of totals yesterday morning were wrong, both by mistake and typographically. Instead of $4,365, we intended it to be $4,865. Neither, however, was right—the figures foot up $4,715, and the grand total is $87,745, leaving $12,255 to be raised.

Business Notices.—Messrs. W. Lair Hill, W. W Thayer and Richard Williams have formed a law partnership and established an office at No. 106 First street—over the postoffice. Mr. Williams, late of Salem, has removed to this city. These gentlemen are all well known as successful practitioners at the bar of our State and Federal courts.

Mr. William Davidson, real estate broker, has a new advertisement this morning to which we call attention.

Odd Fellows' Hall Association.—A meeting of the new Board of Directors of the Odd Fellows' Hall Association was held last evening, when the following officers were elected: President, Wm. Dierdorf; Vice President, A. G. Walling; Secretary, Jacob Stitzel.

Injured by Machinery.—Mr. Geo. Hartness, partner of Mr. Sam Douglas, in the saw mill near East Portland, was seriously hurt yesterday by being struck by the fly-wheel.

THE COURTS.

Tuesday. Feb 7, 1871.

U. S. District Court—Deady, Judge.—H. Y. Thompson, on motion of J. C. Cartwright, was admitted to the bar.

U. S. vs A. F. Turner; complaint for beating a seaman; cause set for trial on Thursday week.

U. S. vs Frank Fowle; complaint for withholding suitable food from seamen on board brig Madawaska while at sea; cause being tried by the Court and the day consumed in taking testimony. Cartwright for U. S., Humason for defendant.

County Court—Hamilton, Judge.—In Probate—In the matter of the estate of H. C. Northrop, deceased, report of sale of real estate by executor and executrix filed, and an order of the Court was made confirming such sale.

In Law—In the case of J. C. Blanchard vs John Bonser and R. J. Ladd, J. C. Work, plaintiff's attorney, moved the Court for an order confirming sale of real estate upon execution, taken under advisement.

County Business—The Commissioners sitting with the Judge—The resignation of P. C. Williams as Constable of East Portland precinct was presented and accepted.

Ordered that a county warrant be drawn in favor of H. M. Humphrey for $22 75, for labor and material on public roads.

Settlements were made with the Supervisors of road districts No. 17, 1 and 2, and their claims were filed and taken under consideration.

Edwin Russell was allowed a deduction of $3,000 on his assessment, except as to State tax.

Ordered that a warrant be drawn for $250 in favor of E. L. Anderson, for services as School Superintendent.

Adjourned till to morrow at 1 o'clock P. M

Ladies—Clarke, Henderson & Cook have just received per steamer Ajax, a large invoice of Jouvine Kid Gloves, which they will sell at reduced rates.

AMUSEMENTS.

Oro Fino Theater.—If the first appearance of Leo Hudson was a great success, it might have been attributed, possibly, to the notoriety of the entertainment offered; but her second house, (last evening) was proof enough that she has made a great hit. The theater was again crowded, and the performance was applauded to the echo, almost from first to last. Several of the tableaux and situations at the close of acts, were encored enthusiastically. Miss Leo is a bold rider, and a dashing personator of the famous knight of the road, and last night she had very effective support, without which no star can get on well. Miss Hudson's Dick Turpin is quite another sort of thing, in Oro Fino theater, from the same personation she has given elsewhere on this upper coast—simply because she has effective support. Nothing yet presented since the introduction of "Under the Gaslights" has brought two such houses in succession, as those of last night and the night before. Miss Leo has evidently taken the town by storm, and her engagement promises a brilliant success. To-night the great sensational drama of "The French Spy"—the entertainment to close with the brilliant comedy of "Lend Me Five Shillings."

The Greatest Sensation Yet.—Our columns this morning announce a grand gala day at East Portland Park next Sunday. Nothing less than the terrific feat of walking a tight rope one hundred and twenty feet from the ground by Mr. James Cook, the hero of the Seal Rock Cliff House rope-walking feat of San Francisco—a performance which attracted a crowd of spectators of not less than 30,000, many of them from distant parts of the State. Beside this daring performance, there will be two balloon ascensions, a grand skating tournament on the Park platform, dancing, music by a first-class band, etc., etc. No bill has ever been offered in this city for a day's amusement equal to this in real, live sensations and opportunities for enjoyment. Excursion trains will run from Albany and way stations to East Portland, on the morning of that day, carrying passengers down and back for one fare. In case of stormy weather, the performance will be postponed till another day.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mr. Ellerton, late of the Oro Fino Dramatic Company, has gone to Walla Walla to join the Pixleys.

Mr. John Dolan, Deputy U. S. Marshal, went to Corvallis yesterday to sell a brewery for violation of revenue laws.

Mr. S. A. Clark, of the Salem Statesman, has gone to Kalama to see "how things look," and thereafter and thereof to inform his readers.

The steamer Rescue went away yesterday morning with upwards of a hundred passengers for Kalama.

The steamship Ajax was at Clinton's Point dock yesterday, receiving freight from both the railroad and river steamers.

The railroad subscription made some headway yesterday, the amount wanted being reduced, as we hear, some thousands.

The R. R. ferry boat has been engaged for a day or two in bringing wheat from the east side depot to Vaughn's mill.

THE UNK WEED REMEDY!
OR OREGON
RHEUMATIC CURE.

HISTORY:
This remedy is composed of the active principle of the Unk Weed, Eng —Thaspium, Cordatum, Origanies, Lat.—Indigenous to Oregon—Grows most abundantly and perfectly in Washington county.

PROPERTIES, &c.:
It contains an active volatile principle extracted by Ether, and a bitter Tonic principle.

Medical Properties and Uses:
It is the most Sure and Speedy Cure for Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout and Rheumatic Pains of all kinds that has ever been introduced in the Materia Medica. The Unk Weed Remedy as prepared by us, in consequence of the existing bitter principle, possesses the necessary virtue of being a POWERFUL TONIC!

Promoting the Appetite and Invigorating the whole Digestive Apparatus, thus building and strengthening the system, while at the same time the volatile principle, being absorbed in the blood, acts specifically on the Rheumatic Poison, removing it from the circulation and system.

There are few remedies known to the Medical profession, which will remove the Rheumatic poison from the blood, but whose action is so powerful in [illegible] the system of the already enfeebled Rheumatic patient, that their use has to be abandoned before specific effects are obtainable. Hence the want of [illegible] in treating this prevalent, and in consequence, heretofore incurable disease. Unlike these Medicines, already known, the

"Unk weed Remedy"

Though producing as powerful and as active effects on the blood and system in removing the Rheumatic Poison, also possesses a strong Tonic and recuperating element, which admits of its continued use even in the most delicate and debilitated. Thus we have the combination for the first time of these two necessary elements in the one remedy, which accounts for its superior and never failing curative effects in

RHEUMATISM, RHEUMATIC GOUT AND
RHEUMATIC PAINS
Of all kinds.

Put Up in 10 oz. Bottles at $1 50 per Bottle.

Sea Ventures.

I stood and watched my ships go out,
Each one by one unmooring free;
What time the quiet harbor filled,
With flood tide from the sea.

The first that sailed, her name was Joy
She spread a smooth, white shining sail,
And eastward drove with bending spars
Before the sighing gale.

Another sailed, her name was Hope;
No cargo in her hold she bore,
Thinking to find in western lands,
Of merchandise a store.

The next that sailed, her name was Love;
She showed a red flag at the mast,
A flag as red as blood, she showed.
And she sped south right fast.

The last that sailed, her name was Faith;
Slowly she took her passage forth,
Tacked and lay to, at last she steered
A straight course for the north.

My gallant ships they sailed away,
Over the shimmering summer sea;
I stood at watch for many a day—
But one came back to me.

For Joy was caught by Pirate Pain;
Hope ran ashore upon a hidden reef;
And Love took fire and foundered fast,
In whelming seas of grief.

Faith came at last, storm beat and torn,
She recompensed me all my loss;
For, as a cargo safe she brought—
A Crown linked to a Cross.

The Tone-Imparting Committee.

[From Mark Twain's Memoranda in February Galaxy.]

When I get old and ponderously respectable only one thing will be able to make me truly happy, and that will be to be put on the Venerable Tone-Imparting Committee of the city of New York, and have nothing to do but sit on the platform, solemn and imposing, along with Peter Cooper, Horace Greeley, etc., and shed momentary fame at second-hand on obscure lectures, draw public attention to lectures that would otherwise clack eloquently to sounding emptiness, and subdue audiences into respectful hearing of all sorts of unpopular and outlandish dogmas and isms. That is what I desire for the cheer and gratification of my gray hairs. Let me but sit up there with those fine relics of the Old Red Sandstone Period, and give tone to an entertainment twice a week, and be so respected, and my happiness would be complete. These men have been my envy for a long, long time. [illegible] memories of my life are [illegible] of their long and [illegible] Tone-imparting service. I can recollect the first time I ever saw them [illegible] just as well as I can remember the events of yesterday. Horace Greeley sat on the right, Peter Cooper on the left, and Thomas Jefferson, Red Jacket, Benjamin Franklin, and John Hancock sat between them. This was on the 22d of December, 1799, on the occasion of the State funeral of George Washington in New York. It was a great day, that—a great day, and a very, very sad one. I remember that Broadway was one mass of black crape from Castle Garden nearly up to where the City Hall now stands. The next time I saw these gentlemen officiate was at a great ball given for the purpose of procuring money and medicines for the sick and wounded soldiers and sailors. Horace Greeley occupied one side of the platform on which the musicians were exalted, and Peter Cooper the other. There were other Tone-imparters attendant upon the two chiefs, but I have forgotten their names. Horace Greeley, gray-haired and beaming, was in sailor costume—white duck pants, blue shirt, open at the breast, large neckerchief, loose as an ox-bow, and tied with a jaunty sailor knot, broad turnover collar with a star in the corner, little shiny black tarpaulin hat roosting daintily far back on his head, and flying two gallant long ribbons. Slippers on ample feet, round spectacles on benignant nose, and pitchfork in hand, completed Mr. Greely, and made him, in my boyish admiration, every inch a sailor, and worthy to be the honored great grandfather of the Neptune he was so ingeniously representing. I shall never forget him. Mr. Cooper was dressed as a General of Militia, and was dismally and oppressively warlike. I neglected to remark, in the proper place, that the soldiers and sailors in whose aid the ball was given, had just been sent to Boston. This was during the war of 1812. At the grand national reception of Lafayette, in 1824, Horace Greeley sat on the right and Peter Cooper on the left. The other Tone-imparters of that day are sleeping the sleep of the just now. I was in the audience when Horace Greeley, Peter Cooper, and other chief citizens imparted tone to the great meeting in favor of French liberty, in 1848. Then I never saw them any more until here lately; but now that I am living tolerably near the city, I run down every time I see it announced that "Horace Greeley, Peter Cooper, and several other distinguished citizens will occupy seats on the platform," and [illegible], when I read in the first paragraph of the phonographic report, "Horace Greeley, Peter Cooper, and several other distinguished citizens occupied seats on the platform," I say to myself, "Thank God I was present." Thus I have been enabled to see these substantial old friends of mine on the platform and give tone to lectures on anatomy, and lectures on agriculture, and lectures on stirpiculture, and lectures on astronomy, on chemistry, on miscegenation, on "Is Man Descended from the Kangaroo?" on veterinary matters, on all kinds of religion, and several kinds of politics; and have seen them give tone and grandeur to the four-legged Girl, the Siamese Twins, the Great Egyptian Sword Swallower, and the Old Original Jacobs. Whenever somebody is to lecture on a subject out of general interest, I know that my venerated Remains of the Old Red Sandstone Period will not be on the platform; whenever a lecturer is to appear whom nobody has ever heard of before, nor will be likely to see, I know that the real benevolence of my old friends will be taken advantage of, and that they will not be on the platform (and in the bill) as an advertisement; and whenever any new and obnoxious deviltry in philosophy, morals, or politics, is to be sprung upon the people, I know perfectly well that these intrepid old heroes will be on that platform, too, in the interest of full and free discussion, and to crush down all narrower and less generous souls with the solid dead weight of their awful respectability. And let us remember that while these inveterate and imperishable presiders (if you please) appear on the platform every night in the year as regularly as the volunteered piano from Steinway's or Chickering's, and have bolstered up and given tone to a deal of questionable merit and obscure emptiness in their time, they have also diversified this inconsequential service by occasional powerful uplifting and upholding of great progressive ideas which smaller men feared to meddle with or countenance.

Clerical Inaptitude.—Unworthy men will occasionally find their way into the ministry of every denomination. As a rule, however, their misdeeds are generally discovered. The following instance of impertinent clerical officiousness, promptly rebuked, comes to us from a Kansas correspondent:

Old Dr.   is a Kentuckian, fond of a cigar and a little game of cards. In his employ was a young man who, though professedly a Methodist, had so far backslidden as to play a little sometimes. The two were sitting in the house one rainy day having a game of euchre. The Rev. Mr.   , the resident Methodist minister, dropped in, and after glancing at the doctor's hand passed around behind the young man, took a seat, and quietly watched the game. The young man was about to play a certain card, when the minister whispered to him:

"Don't play that; if you do you'll be euchered, sure."

Whereupon the doctor, waxing irate, said: "See here, Mr.   , I ain't playing this game against the whole Methodist Conference. If the Conference wants to put up a V, I'll play them a rub."

This reverend brother was soon discovered to be a "mistake," and was deposed from the ministry.—Harper's Magazine.

Mr. Greeley on President Grant.—On the occasion of his election as presiding officer of the New York League Club, Horace Greeley delivered an address, from which we extract this:

As to the administration of Gen. Grant, I recognize no one as a Republican who is not grateful for his judicious, energetic and successful efforts to procure the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment, that keystone of our political arch whereby the fruits of our great triumph over rebellion and slavery are assured and perpetuated. That the President has made some mistakes in appointments is obvious; it would be strange indeed if one so inexperienced in the conduct of political affairs had wholly escaped them.

Whatever blame may justly attach to this falls rightfully on us, who took him from the head of the army and made him our civil Chief Magistrate, fully aware that he had never voted a Republican ticket, if, indeed, he had voted at all. While asserting the right of every Republican to his untrammeled choice of a candidate for next President until a nomination is made, I venture to suggest that General Grant will be far better qualified for that momentous trust in 1872 than he was in 1868.

A New York politician, in writing a letter of condolence to the widow of a "country member" who had been his friend, says: "I am pained to hear that   has gone to heaven. We were bosom friends, but now we shall never meet again."

Bounties, Pensions, Arrears of Pay,

PRIZE MONEY, PAY FOR HORSES, STEAMBOATS and other property lost and destroyed while in the service of the United States, or in Oregon or Washington Territories in 1855-6, or California Indian Wars, and for Quartermaster's Stores or Subsistence Supplies taken for the Army, Officers Extra Pay, and for the prosecution of Claims of all kinds against the United States.

Ordnance and Quartermasters' Accounts adjusted, and Certificates of Non-Indebtedness procured for discharged officers.

I also prosecute claims for Arrears of Pay and Pensions, Prize Money, Commutations of Rations while prisoners of war, Indemnity for Lost Clothing, Restoration of Suspended Pensions, Duplicate Land Warrants, Land Patents and Treasury Certificates and all other classes of Government Claims.

I will be pleased to correspond with those who are engaged or desire to engage in obtaining such claims and also other claims against the United States. I will send them all necessary forms and instructions, and keep them advised of all laws and decisions relating to claims, and my fees on such claims will be but one-half the fees charged claimants.

I refer to Members of Congress, Officers of the Government and others who have resided in Oregon or Washington during the last twenty years.

LAND DEPARTMENT
OREGON & CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

Salem, Oregon, October 22, 1870.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT IS MADE FOR information of all concerned:

First—Congress has granted to the Company all alternate sections of the public lands designated by odd-numbers within a distance of thirty miles on each side of the railroad, excepting lands to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had attached prior to the withdrawal by Government of the lands co-terminous with the first division of located line from East Portland to Jefferson, at 12 M. February 16, 1870. The second division of located line from Jefferson to a point six miles south of Roseburg, May, 1870, and from the last named point to the California line, 1870.

Second—Persons who have valid pre-emption or homestead claims to any tract on an odd numbered section can purchase the same from the Railroad Company at the Government price of $1 25 per acre in greenbacks, and upon very favorable terms, if they so desire, by filing an abandonment of their claim in the U. S. Land Office, blanks for which will be furnished by the Land Agent of the Company. Such purchase from the Company has these advantages over a purchase from the Government: The party can leave the land if necessary; he can sell the land or mortgage it; he is saved the payment of lawyers' or agents' fees, and expenses of witnesses to go to the Land Office to "prove up" his claim; he can get his title perfect in less time, and he can buy on credit at a low rate of interest.

Third—No sales will be made by the Company until the land is listed over to it by the United States Land Commissioner and Secretary of the Interior.

Purchasers are thus assured that the title they obtain is perfect.   I. R. MOORES,

Bidders to propose schedule of departures and arrivals.

NOTES.

Proposals must be to carry the mail with "celerity, certainty and security," using the terms of the law, and they must be guaranteed by two responsible persons, certified to as such by a postmaster or judge of a court of record.

No pay will be made for trips not performed; and for each of such omissions not satisfactorily explained, three times the pay of the trip may be deducted. For arrivals so far behind time as to break connection with depending mails, and not sufficiently excused, one-fourth of the compensation of the trip is subject to forfeiture. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be satisfactorily explained, for neglecting to take the mail from or into a post office; for suffering it to be injured, destroyed, robbed, or lost; and for refusing, after demand, to convey the mail as frequently as the contractor runs or is concerned in running a vehicle on the route. The Postmaster General may annul the contract for disobeying the Postoffice Laws, or the instructions of the Department. He may alter the schedule of departures and arrivals, and also order an increase of service by allowing therefor a pro rata increase of the contract pay. He may also curtail or discontinue the service in whole or in part, at a proportionate decrease of pay, allowing as full indemnity to the contractor one month's extra compensation on the amount of service dispensed with and a pro rata compensation for the service retained and continued. Bids should be addressed to the "Second Assistant Postmaster General," superscribed "Proposals, State of Or.," and sent by mail.

For forms of proposal, &c., and other information, see advertisement of Sept. 30, 1869, and of this date, in pamphlet form, at the principal Postoffices.
